THREE NEW YORK LANDMARKS. Trinity, St. Paul's and Crace Church Dofy the Advance of Business Interests.

Three landmarks on Broadway occupy sites so valuable that their retention confounds every calculation of real estate speculators. They are the only three churches on Broadway below Forty-secout street, and each his come to be part of the popular distinction of that theroughfare. They are Thinty, St. Paul's and Grace. All three have high claims to architectural eminence, and all three

The site of Trinity c much, on Broadway at the head of Wall street, is aped officially at $4,000,000; that of St. Paul's church, at Broadway and Fulton street, at $1,750,000, and that of rate of assessment on real estate is about 60 per cent the actual market value of these three Broadway plots is in excess of $10,000,000. In European cities it is no strange thing for public thorough-fares to be dotted with venerable edifices erected for eccles astical, military or governmental purposes, but in New York, where there is no naterial partnership between church and state, and where, perhaps, more utilitarian views, provail than abroad, the stendy enhancement of real estate values has been such that few religious corporations have been strong enough or felt theinselves strong enough to withstand the temptation to sell. St. Paul's church is the oldest religious edifice in this city It was built in 1764, and it was the church which George Washington and his associates attended immediately fellowing the inauguration ceremonies in 1789. Trinity church is the third of that name on the present site, and was creeted in 1843, Grace church was erected in 1845, one year before Trinity, and the site, at the head of Broadway where it turns an angle at Tenth street, was carefully cho sen. All three buildings cujoy the advantage of being kept in excellent repair, and are improved from time to time by the liberal contributions of bene-factors. This is especially true of Trin-ity and Grace church, which may almost be said to improve year by year. Probably no better illustration can be had, even at the present sine, of the great importance of free access of air to woodwork as a means of protection against premature decay, that the results an .nvestigation, conducted a few of an investigation, conducted a few years ago, into the causes of an accident in an expensive apartment louse in one of the principal cities of the United States, in which a portion of one of the upper floors gave way, and, in falling, carried along correspond ng sections of the several floors below, landing the whole mass of wreckage in the cellar It was found that a fortunately unusui'l system of floor construction had been adopted in the building in question, the spaces between the wooden beams having been filled with ash is, presumably with the view of making a comparative ly fireproof structure.
Whatever its merits in this respect may have been, there was no question

whatever that the mixture of ashes formed a most efficient Larrier against any meisture that was innerently in them or afterward found its way to them through the tiling above had little opportunity of being carried away by any ventilating air currents. The beams ply had to rot, and that compara tively quickly. In the subsequent work of reconstruction of the floors, however good care was taken that they should not again suffer in the same way. Mill architects generally appreciate the preserving influence of free air cir-Hon, T. H.
